

Tony Rumschlag, DVM, Senior Advisor, External Innovation

Tony received BS in Animal Science and DVM from Purdue University. He gained experience in small animal practice in Atlanta, Ga prior to joining industry and has over 30 years experience in commercial roles. Tony held various roles with Hill's Pet Nutrition and Merial prior to joining Elanco in 2006. Tony was hired to start the Pet Health Consulting Veterinarians (TC) team which he led for 15 years prior to joining the External Innovations team. His experience includes oversight of post-approval studies and launching innovative new products to the veterinary profession.

He has strong connections and relationships in many facets of veterinary medicine including state and national veterinary associations and colleges. He has been a member of the American Heartworm Society Board since 2011 and has a keen interest in parasitology and a variety of other infectious diseases affecting animals. He loves connecting science to solutions for conditions and diseases affecting animals.

